

{loadposition sort}

America remains at war with terrorists who continue to target the American people. Our national security agencies must stay on the offensive and keep our enemies on the defensive.

While our intelligence agencies must learn from any mistakes, we cannot wait for any further incidents to expose any additional vulnerability.

We must improve our threat assessments and undertake appropriate security protections. We must design and implement strategies to prevent terrorists from ever attempting any attacks. By doing so, we can prevent another terrorist attack and save thousands of lives.