Revitalizing our economy and putting Americans back to work is my top priority in Washington. Small businesses, not government, have been the economic engine that drives America. Congress must get its fiscal house in order and put the power back in hands of small business so they can use their resources to spur innovation and create jobs.

I support policies that will empower the private sector and limit the size and scope of the federal government. As a proud member of the House Committee on Small Business, I will work to eliminate unnecessary and burdensome regulations, cut taxes, and reduce wasteful spending.
